YEARLY INDEX

Clavier, Volume XIV, 1975

Not every magazine publishes or needs to publish a cumulative index. Articles in Clavier, however, have no expiration date — they are timeless. Many letters come to us from readers who say they have all their copies from the first issue of the magazine. When we ask in a survey how long subscribers keep their copies the preponderance always answers, "Permanently." It was this fact that made us realize the necessity of providing a complete index of articles, so that readers could locate important items partially remembered. The first cumulative index appeared in the December 1965 issue and listed all material that had appeared from the magazine's inception in 1962 through that issue. Every year since then the December issue has indexed all material that appeared during that year.
